Investment Perspective

FROM BRETHREN FOUNDATION FUNDS

AUGUST 2016

MARKETS AND THE ECONOMY

The S&P 500 Index had a strong start to the third quarter, rising 3.7 percent in July. Second quarter real GDP grew at an annual rate of 1.2 percent; consumer spending was the largest contributor while reduced business investment produced the largest drag. Citing continuing concerns about inflation and a weak global economic outlook, the Federal Reserve left the federal funds rate unchanged. The housing sector continued to demonstrate strong fundamentals. Existing home sales continued to show strength in June, increasing 1.1 percent, up 3 percent versus a year ago. The Consumer Price Index increased 0.2 percent in June, up 1 percent from a year ago. Strong non-store sales drove a 0.6 percent increase in retail sales in June, up 2.7 percent from a year earlier. The bond market, as measured by the Barclays Capital Government/Credit Index, increased 0.8 percent in July.

The Eurozone's second quarter GDP grew at a 1.2 percent annual rate, down from the previous quarter's annualized rate of 2.2 percent. In France, Eurozone's second biggest economy, GDP was flat. Eurozone's unemployment rate also remained flat at 10.1 percent in June. The Central Bank of Japan chose not to expand its bond purchasing program or cut negative interest rates even lower, but launched an assessment of the effectiveness of its stimulus policies. Through a rise in government spending and an abundant supply of credit, China's second quarter GDP remained steady with first quarter results, at a 6.7 percent annualized growth rate. The Bank of England loosened bank capital requirements to support lending and maintained its benchmark interest rate at 0.5 percent. The bank will wait for more data on the economy's health before deciding on any new stimulus measures on the heels of Brexit. International equities, as measured by the MSCI EAFE Index, increased 5.1 percent in July.

SOCIALLY RESPONSIBLE INVESTING AND PERFORMANCE

Brethren Foundation Funds seeks to provide competitive performance for client assets through investments based on denominational positions on various social issues. This means that certain companies that could otherwise be available to the investment managers are screened out of BFFI's portfolios, because they are in conflict with Brethren values as expressed by Church of the Brethren Annual Conference statements.

BFFI staff members are frequently asked whether these social screens have a negative impact on performance. Being aware of this concern, BFFI staff members regularly ask the investment managers serving the actively managed funds whether social screens impact the performance of those portfolios. Some managers have reported that the timing of money moving into and out of the portfolio has a greater impact on performance than BFFI's social screens. All of the managers indicate that the BFFI social screens can have an impact on performance that is most noticeable in the short term, where the BFFI portfolio sometimes outperforms and sometimes underperforms the managers' unscreened core portfolios. Over the long term, however, the managers affirm that BFFI's portfolios and the unscreened core portfolios tend to perform very similarly. Based on investment manager feedback, BFFI affirms that its invested assets do not experience a long-term performance impact, positive or negative, due to its socially responsible investing screens.

NOTE: Both performance expectations and compliance with BFFI social screens are equally important components of BFFI's investment program. Investment managers have lost their opportunity to serve BFFI because they have not succeeded in achieving one or the other of those expectations.
